

Name: _____

Research Paper Outline

- Introduction

- Hook:

- Thesis: (choose one of the following stems to create your thesis; you are listing out your a, B, and C)

- The most important things to know about ____ are A, B, and C.
- The biggest aspects of ____ are A, B, and C.
- The most notable features of ____ are A, B, and C.

- Body Paragraph #1 (Point A)

- Topic Sentence: (this is where you introduce point A)

- Possible Quote Ideas (3 quotes required on final):

* This paragraph will require much more depth than just a topic sentence and some quotes. Whenever you write your rough draft, you will put background information between quotes and will explain how each quote is relevant to your point. You will also transition from paragraph to paragraph.

- Body Paragraph #2 (Point B)

- Topic Sentence: (this is where you introduce point B)

- Possible Quote Ideas (3 quotes required on final):

* This paragraph will require much more depth than just a topic sentence and some quotes. Whenever you write your rough draft, you will put background information between quotes and will explain how each quote is relevant to your point. You will also transition from paragraph to paragraph.

- Body Paragraph #3 (Point C)

- Topic Sentence: (this is where you introduce point C)

- Possible Quote Ideas (3 quotes required on final):

* This paragraph will require much more depth than just a topic sentence and some quotes. Whenever you write your rough draft, you will put background information between quotes and will explain how each quote is relevant to your point. You will also transition from paragraph to paragraph.

- Conclusion

- Restate (reword) Thesis:

- Relevance Statements (Why do we care about this topic?)

“This is important because...”

“A solution for this problem is”
